

CAPPING INSULIN COST SHARING IN 2023

Cigna Medicare Advantage Prescription Drug Plans

Important information about insulin cost for your patients with Medicare Part D coverage

In August 2022, the Inflation Reduction Act (IRA) was passed to lower the cost of insulin medications and vaccines for people with Medicare Part D coverage.

Beginning in 2023, your patients with Part D coverage will only need to pay $35 (or less) for a one-month supply of each insulin product covered by their plan, no matter what cost-sharing tier it's on, even if they haven't met their annual deductible. This also applies to combination products that include at least one type of insulin, such as one that contains both insulin and a non-insulin drug, or a biological product.

Cigna Medicare Advantage Prescription Drug (MAPD) plan insulin coverage

Most Cigna MAPD formularies have insulin available on Tier 3 and Tier 5. Cigna Achieve MAPD formularies also have insulin available on Tier 6.

Insulins	Deductible	Initial coverage stage (one-month supply)	Coverage gap (one-month supply)	Catastrophic stage (one-month supply)
Tier 3 - Humalog - Humulin* - Lantus - Levemir - Lyumjev - Toujeo - Tresiba - Soliqua - Xultophy	None	$35 or plan-defined cost share, whichever is less	$35 or 25 percent, whichever is less	$35 or 5 percent (minimum of $10.35), whichever is less
Tier 5 Humulin R U-500	None	$35 or plan-defined coinsurance, whichever is less	$35 or 25 percent, whichever is less	$35 or 5 percent (minimum of $10.35), whichever is less

Note that your patients who receive a Medicare Part D low-income subsidy (LIS) cost-sharing reduction will continue to pay their LIS cost share, but never more than $35.
